

THE LEE BUSINESS SCHOOL MENTORSHIP PROGRAM POWERED BY THE LIED CENTER FOR REAL ESTATE

The UNLV Lee Business School is deeply committed to supporting the next generation of business leaders. Powered by the Lied Center for Real Estate, UNLV Lee Business School students have the opportunity to connect directly with experienced industry professionals who are eager to share their knowledge, insights, and career journeys.

This program is designed to give students an inside look at the many business career paths—including accounting, marketing, finance, economics, management, and commercial real estate (development, investment, brokerage, and property management). By participating, students will not only gain exposure to the real world of business but also develop meaningful professional relationships that can guide them through career decisions, internships, and job opportunities.

For UNLV Lee Business School students who are looking to explore potential career options or take their first steps toward building a professional network, the Lee Mentorship Program provides a valuable platform to learn, engage, and grow.

How Does It Work?

For one semester, a mentor is paired with a UNLV student who has expressed an interest in a mentor's professional area. Students are expected to learn what their mentor's job entails, enabling them to be better prepared in making decisions about future employment. Further, students are expected to use this program to enhance their in-class learning experiences with their mentor's day-to-day operations.
